Ancient European languages and writings (AELAW)

Action IS1407

Chair of the action: Prof. Francisco Beltrán Lloris
(Zaragoza)

Vice chair : Dr. Simona Marchesini (Verona)

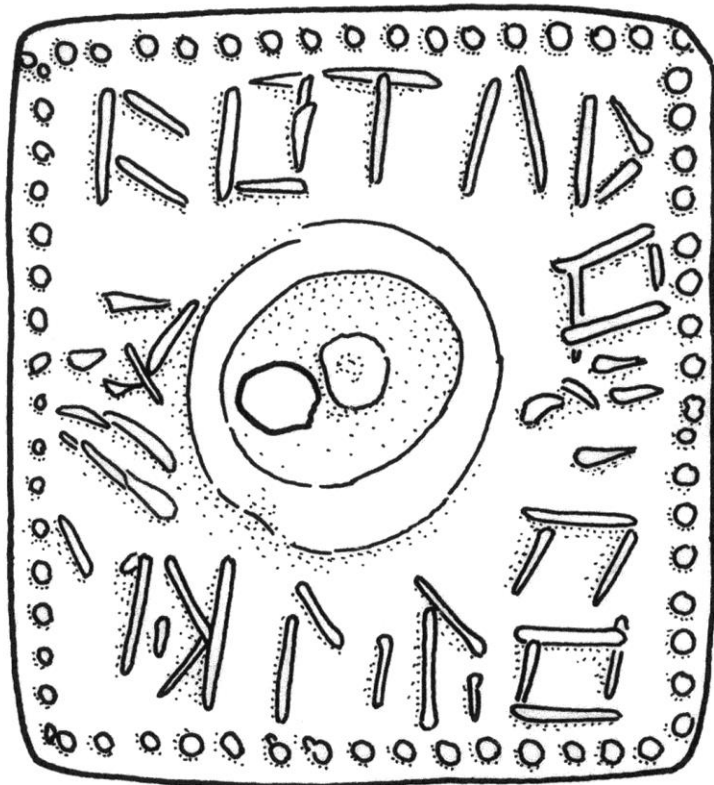

Countries involved:

Austria, Belgium, France, Germany, Greece, Ireland, Italy, Poland, Portugal, Slovenia, Spain, United Kingdom

There is written evidence of about twenty fragmentary ancient European languages. Of these some 20,000 documents are conserved on stone, metal or pottery in diverse systems of writing, some of which have not been completely deciphered yet.

The main objective of the Action is the co-ordination of researchers dedicated to the study of the different ancient languages and writings with the aim of creating a large online data bank which will permit the cataloguing of all the currently known documents, thus introducing this important part of the European cultural heritage into the 21st century.

Explained as a personal name and a patronymic:

voturos vo<sup>1</sup> / p<sup>1</sup> / p knijs

Voturi were one of the gentes of the Galatae (Pliny, NH 5.146).
